DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Matushita teaches an image forming apparatus and method comprising replaceable component parts with a security system to determine the authenticity and remaining service life of the component parts. The component parts have an identifiable code. Storch teaches counterfeit detection using ID numbers with at least one random portion. French teaches a value dispensing apparatus and method for remote inspection of a value dispensing mechanism. Phillips teaches a printing device and method having a protection device provided with a comparison means for comparing a second code word with a first code word and inhibit means arranged to enable cooperation between the printer and the cartridge only after correspondence between the second code word and the first code word has been detected by the comparison means.

None of Matsushita, Storch, French, or Phillips teach "before substituting said replacement consumable for said depleted consumable in said device, authenticating said replacement consumable by entering said code number aggregated with said replacement consumable into said device, and in said device, obtaining an authentication result by checking whether said code number aggregated with said replacement consumable has said relationship to one of said reference code numbers in said reference code number range stored in said device, and if so, consuming said one of said reference code numbers in said device by permanently deleting said one of said reference code numbers from said device, and controlling said device dependent on authentication result".

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
